It's a weird time for workplace culture – return-to-office mandates, shifting organizational priorities, and four different generations of professionals just trying to work together. Building strong, supportive professional networks is more important than ever, but what are the new norms for networking in 2025? We'll kick off with a brief presentation followed by a small group facilitated discussion designed to spark connections and equip attendees with practical networking strategies.

Presenter:

Anne Keeney, Senior Vice President, Glen Echo Group

4:35 – 5:35 p.m. MARKETING YOU: Advanced Strategies for Making an Impact

Whether we're launching new ventures, transitioning careers, or developing client relationships, how do we attract the attention and earn the respect of decision-makers? This panel will discuss strategies for marketing our talents and refining our personal brands during challenging and unpredictable times.
